Balblair 33 Year Old Scoops Best of the Best Gold Medal Award

Balblair 33 year old, owned by Inver House Distillers has scooped the prestigious Whisky Magazine's gold award for excellence, for the best mainland malt whisky. The category included all mainland malts from the Lowlands, Highlands and Campbeltown. Balblair was deemed to be by far the clearest winner of the event. The competition involved a selection of the best forty whiskies tasted by the magazine over the previous two years - it brought together the best distillers, retailers and journalists across three continents.

Balblair distillery founded in 1790 is located on the Dornoch Firth and is one of the oldest working distilleries in Scotland. Derek Sinclair distillery manager commented: "We have always taken great pride in Balblair and it's wonderful to be given recognition by well well-known experts within the whisky industry – It helps in our quest to put Balblair on the map!"

An exclusive limited edition, Balblair 33 year old was introduced to the market in late 2000 and available stocks are now in short supply. Future exclusive bottlings are planned.
